ARTS GROUPS CONTACT INFORMATION

As schedules and events are changing every day, it is difficult to publish a monthly calendar in advance. The Arts Commission encourages community members to contact organizations directly for specific information. The following is a list of organizations and contact information we have gathered to help you in your search for art!

I will continue to be on the Joe Show WHIR AM 1230 Thursday mornings at about 7:48 am for art news.

light, casual, venture to relax without a care in the world. You know a good book when you finish it. While there are many talented writers among us, most of us will never put pen to paper or fingers to a keyboard to create a product that ends up on a Best Seller list.

But did you know that the process and act of writing is good for your brain, your mental health, and general feeling of wellness? Just about anyone can benefit from personal writing. For example, regular journaling can help identify areas of concern, reflect on patterns of behavior, encourage organization and prioritizing. It is just about you, by you, for you, to use for your own needs.

Writing is an art, and like any art form, it is most powerful when it is personal. The Arts Commission is sponsoring an evening of writing and conversation with several community members who will share their varying experiences with writing. Please join us on March 28th at 5:30 at Dry Stack on Main Street for the return of our “Women Writers” series. The evening is free with light refreshments, coffee and tea from Dry Stack, and a journal to get you started. Reservations are welcome and you don’t have to be a woman to attend!

This program is made possible through a grant from the Kentucky Federation of Business and Professional Women’s Foundation.

Welcome aBoard!

We asked and Corey responded. The Arts Commission is pleased to welcome Corey Burns to our Board of Directors. Corey is a resident of Danville. He is a teacher in the Mercer County schools and will bring his experience working with special needs and at-risk children to our programs as we expand our services and opportunities for all children and their families.

THE LIBRARY IS COVERED IN MYSTERY

We hear there is going to be a murder among the shelves at the Boyle County Public Library. Our information says the deed will occur sometime in July. No need to make a report, however, this event is next on the murder mystery schedule at the Library. You can be a star suspect to try to fool community sleuths. If interested in testing out your Thespian skills and criminal mind, contact the author/director Lyndsi Hersch for details. Four to five characters, not gender specific, are needed. Email Lyndsi at lher-schd@gmail.com to join the fun.

There is a chair for YOU

In days gone by, women gathered to quilt and sew for family, friends and charity. Along the way, they socialized and shared memories. Following our hiatus for Covid, the quilt restoration project has resumed. A group meets on the first and third Mondays of the month from 10:00 – 12:00 at the Arts Commission office. No experience or equipment is needed. You are welcome.

Bringing old photos to

Michael Hughes has compiled a huge archive of black and white photographs. Several years ago, he began experimenting with a digital app to colorize some of the photos. The result is a truly amazing take on the subjects. Black and White photography can be very dramatic, but the colorized version brings everyday stories to life.

The Arts Commission asked Michael to select some of the photos for a small exhibit in the Schoolhouse building at Constitution Square. The exhibit is open when the Gallery Open sign is on the door. Michael will be available at the Open House on May 7th to talk about the process and the stories behind each of the pieces.

Come have a cup of coffee and a muffin, and enjoy a chat with Michael, then head out and enjoy Farmer’s Market.
