

A few suggestions for holiday activities

activities are free, donations are accepted

This painting depicts Jane Todd Crawford's now famous, and successful, trip from Green County, Kentucky to Danville in December of 1809 for a controversial and unheard of surgery. The conditions were harrowing, dangerous and painful, but had a happy ending with her full recovery and return to her family. This painting is on loan to the Schoolhouse Gallery in Constitution Square by the artist, Karen Roland of Green County.

Oh, the stories these guys will share!

Your support during Bluegrass Gives will bring this exciting program to life for elementary age children across our county. Remember the impact that famous puppet programs had on us and our children? Those characters could make us laugh and teach us life lessons at the same time. A puppet naturally draws us in to talk and listen because it is not a regular person.

The Arts Commission is proud to add this exciting tool to our existing programming which takes the arts out into the community, accessible to all, free of charge. The puppet program along with the school plays, youth arts exhibits, and multiple scholarships provide school age children opportunities to perform, participate and become engaged in learning.

BLUEGRASS GIVES IS DECEMBER 2ND

On December 2nd, the Bluegrass Gives campaign, formerly BlueGrass GoodGiving, will accept donations through its online platform with possibilities of $1 for $1 matches throughout the day. Our donors have generously responded during previous years making a huge difference in the growth of our organization.

Donor support has made it possible for us to expand and provide fiscal sponsorship services to five volunteer led community based arts groups free of charge. These groups are:
Scarlet Cup Theater
Danville Sings (Sounding Joy, Resonance, Summer Singers and Danville Children's Choir)
Heritage Areas Strings Program
The Pieceable Friends Quilt Guild
The Kentucky Review of Art

These sponsored organizations can be in the business of creating while the Arts Commission manages their day to day organizational business tasks!
Please follow Facebook, our website, danvillearts.org, and emails in the days leading up to Dec. 2nd for instructions on the simple online giving process. Your gift will make a difference.
